UNDER THE EQUATOR.

The policy of the Advocate is to treat any subject that concerns the public weal, religion, health, good order, temperance, sanitary questions, science, Next to the Church, comes ordered liberty, best government. Jesus let fly a sentence that disclosed His opinion of the pretty ruler of His people: "Tell that fox."—Herod. The people had no voice in the government. The crown of Judea was the gift of the conqueror. The Roman Tiberius. The placement of the Idumean king kept an alert ear and unwilling eye near to the great Galilean. Jesus shunned political themes and discouraged tumults. Judea was not the Italy of Garibaldi, nor Rome under the Tarquins.

Among Americans, in theory the citizen is the sovereign, and the Cleverlands and McKinleys are servants. It is therefore, high duty to inform the people of their wrongs and their rights. A sentiment of a Roman author, uttered in a theatre lifted the uncounted concourse to their feet and the arches shouted back the cheers. "I am a man and humanity's affairs concern me."

Since the flowers, now nipped by the eager autumn frost, bloomed, a revolution in our government has occurred. America has become an Asiatic power. Providence hid this continent for centuries till the race had broken the fetters that bound the mind, and the Reformation made ready a people for the experiment of self government. Washington, by as great displays of the outstretched arm of God as Israel ever saw, brought deliverance. He interpreted the purpose of heaven—a republic on this continent, as separate from all other nations as Israel was, walled in by worship of Jehovah, by social customs, and even by a prescribed diet of fare, by making a Jew a disagreeable guest by reason of select viands and queer cooking, keeping him at home by fear of the sea and from conquest of distant nations by forbidding horses confining him to the slow and stubborn mule.

This nation has cast aside the warning of Washington and set at naught the decree of God. One year ago Congress shrank from annexing the group of islands on the highway to Asia—the Hawaiian. In less than a revolving year they are incorporated as a matter of course. And a mongrel population, nearly three times the numbers in the America of 1776, becomes a part of the republic, as savage as Sioux and far inferior in social worth to the rice swamp ex-slaves. Our policy has been to keep clear of entanglements by making this continent our limit. Asia is the destined Armageddon—the battle ground of empires. America, like a bully, rushes to the fatal field and takes position with challenging fists. Our mission was peace. Our country was the college to teach self-government.

The cautioning words of Washington, the lessons of history, the leadings of Providence have been discarded—scouted. And so did Israel. When the rulers of the chosen people aspired to conquests and military alliances then Jehovah gave them over to ruin.

When students of history and the seasoned statesmen like Hoar, of Boston, and Edmunds, of Vermont, protest to the President and their party against the madness of incorporating the millions of Malays six thousand miles away from our shores, we may shudder for ourselves. The industry and frugality of Anglo-Saxons citizenship must be confiscated by taxes for army corps and battle-ships to subdue our yellow savages and protect them from Russia, Japan, England, each an Oriental Empire. Peace with Spain is proclaimed. The war ended two months ago, yet the extraordinary war revenue continues and the party prophets predict these emergency impacts will remain a permanent burden.

The army holding in subjection distant and restless peoples dictated the laws and the rulers to Rome. Our Asiatic navy and our Asiatic army will enable its wishes to conventions and candidates. They may bring the Philippine ballot on war ships to our shores and bombard San Francisco if this "balance of power" in the yellow velvet box is not "counted." We have seen a Sherman denouncing an Alger for buying his negro delegates and hamstringing his nomination for the Presidency. Will not the saffron suffragans of Manila be in the market? Will not the military governor carry our archipelago in his wallet—a "pocket borough" ballot? Will not epaulettes in Luzon decide the man for the White House? France is also a republic. Dare M. Favre lift a finger without a permit from the "General Staff." The Beechers were a race with abnormal bulge in the brain box. The greatest was the unknown brother, the Beecher of Elmira. Such was his power on the platform that he must be consulted on all city enterprises of moment. He was invited to speak at Gt. Tisbury. He did. Lincoln's brief all was feeble by the side of the majestic wisdom and grandeur of kingly thought. And the man was a hero. The audience of conquerors expected easily of the victorious dead. He stood on heights held by Meade's men, the citadel rock of nature's own bastion, and declared that the only question settled there was the ability of armed men in superior number on such rugged cliffs to defeat a free marching through open field under fierce fire of musket and shells.

This Beecher pronounced the destruction of the patriarchal system of civilizing an alien and inferior race a curse that would plague America for many a long year. He held it was the crime of the ages. And in this good year of grace, 1898, that truth is dawned upon the mind of the victorious section. Prejudice ossified by success is seldom accessible to truth. The rays are shining along the rim of darkness. The negro is a negro and not a white man with a black skin. How long has the jaundiced eye refused to see it.

We see the errors ahead in Asia. But near home there is a lesson taught. This republic is not for Malays. Nor for negroes. It is a white man's government. While the Republicans are fencing off the bulk of the inhabitants of Hawaii from the ballot, the Democrats are lifting the voting box above the ignorance and shiftlessness of the black man. It would seem that "manhood suffrage" is destined to disappear among the fanaticisms bred of the insanity that deranged Northern statesmen in 1865. Even the Rev. Arthur Edwards, of the Chicago Advocate, if spared a few more years may "come to himself." Restricted suffrage may elevate American citizenship to a position of rank, as in the days of Paul and Verres. Wonders tread with hot and hastening feet on the heels of wonders. A month in 1898 is a century. Alas! while events ripen rapidly, the roots riot in the rich ashes of a volcano. Or the sultry and stimulating air is surcharged with tropical typhoons.

Our Constitution is now under the Equator. We have brought home a kitten tiger to play with our children. It grows tooth and claw, quick and keen. Will he be a pet always?—Richmond Christian Advocate.

It takes more than a disgruntled paragrapher and a few sore-heads to make a new Democratic leader in Congress.

Now, will Mr. McKinley please tell the country what he really thinks we ought to do with the Philippines?

For a party that has just captured Congress the republicans are displaying an all-fired fear at the mention of an extra session.

If some of the London papers are not more careful, they will convince the world that England expects to be paid for being friendly towards the U. S.

STORIES OF THE OLD DOMINION

One of the books just issued from the press of Harper & Brothers is a new edition of John Esten Cooke's "Stories of the Old Dominion." This book was recommended by the State Board of Education for supplementary reading in the common schools of Virginia, and the edition just out was prepared in order to supply the demand created by that recommendation. The book is a post octavo volume containing 537 pages, and is very neatly bound in cloth. The contract price at which the book was listed by the Board was $1.00, but the publishers have met the large and increasing demand by issuing this new edition at 80 cents per copy.

For this attractive volume Mr. Cooke himself an enthusiastic Virginian, has culled all the most interesting and important events of colonial days and tells them simply, graphically and attractively. It embodies many tales of Virginia history and biography not generally known, and while prepared for boys and girls it is worthy the perusal as well of men and women. It is a work which should be placed in the hands of every school boy and school girl in the State of Virginia.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF THE SOUTH.

Communicated.
"Great Britain and Europe are not the only countries in the world with which commercial intercourse is desirable; nor are they the only ones whose trade can be enriched and made prosperous." So wrote Matthew F. Maury in 1853, and he proceeded to show the importance of the trade of the islands of the sea, and that of South America; and more especially the opportunity thus offered to the people of the South to regain much of that commercial supremacy which she once had, but has now lost forever, with England and Europe.

It is a most remarkable fact that the waters of the Mississippi and those of the Amazon with their numerous tributaries draining the North and South American continents, mingle their waters in the Caribbean Sea. Commodore Maury says, "Nature has scooped out the land in Central America and cut the continent nearly in two there that she might plant between the mouth of the King of Rivers (Mississippi) and of the Father of Waters (Amazon) an arm of the sea capable of receiving the surplus produce which the two grandest river basins on the face of the earth are some day to pour out into the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea."

Words of prophecy, which are on the eve of fulfillment, if the results of our negotiations at Paris are such as to awaken the American people to their opportunity and their duty.

The Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico are twin basins and are destined by nature to be the greatest commercial receptacles in the world. Commodore Maury says, "In consequence of the winds and currents of sea the course of navigation from the mouths of the Mississippi and of the Amazon, as well as from all parts of the Gulf and Caribbean Sea, is such as to compel every vessel that trades in their markets whether it be with the produce of the great Amazonian valley at the south or the mighty valley of the West, so freighted for Europe, for Africa, for India, nay, for Rio de Janeiro and for South America itself to pass the very offings of our Southern ports on their way to market." And when there shall be established a commercial thoroughfare across the Isthmus the trade winds of the Pacific will place China and India and all the islands of that ocean down hill also from this sea of ours. In that case the whole of Europe must pass by our very doors on the great highway to the market lots of the East and West Indies."

Is it important then for the United States to hold ports on this highway of the sea for the protection and encouragement of her commerce? We now rank as the third commercial power in the world and are fast outstripping Germany in the race for second place in the volume of her foreign trade.

England and America, two Anglo-Saxons, seem destined to control the trade of the world. The result of the war with Spain has served a useful purpose in emphasizing and determining the close relations of these two peoples, and foreshadowing the work, their concerted and harmonious endeavors must accomplish for the civilization of the world. There is no greater factor in civilization than commerce. How are England and the United States to be co-factors in this work? Upon first view it might be supposed that they would be rivals rather than co-workers. It is true that England and America have both swept across the continent with their Canadian and Pacific railways and rest upon the Pacific. But not as rivals, rather as co-workers, they now stand for the development of their trade relations. Russia and England are in the highest degree antagonistic, and England has a large interest at stake in the East. She would, no doubt, be glad to have American support in the face of coalition of continental powers to obstruct and overthrow her power in the East, and in exchange guarantee to America her support in our trade relations with the islands of the sea and South America. "There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune. Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries." These lines are as applicable to nations as to men. We do not pretend to be "wise beyond any event," but there does seem to be a community of interest between the United States and England created by the conditions in the East, for the one, and in the West for the other, which, now offered and neglected, may never be presented again in the widening commerce of the world's future.

Burke's prophecy of America's future may in our generation be fulfilled. "Young man, there is America, which, at this present day, serves for little more than to amuse you with stories of savage men and uncouth manners, yet shall, before you taste of death, show itself equal to the whole of that commerce which now attracts the envy of the world."

The Clayton-Bulwer treaty which has heretofore stood in the way of a canal across the Isthmus, in that it provided for a joint control of that waterway, may no longer be a hindrance and an American-built canal, under exclusive American control, may now be established without any conflicting interests.

Are we willing to barter the future for present indifference or fancied security? The building of the Nicaraguan canal, the holding of Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the control of the Philippines and LaRones, give us an assured commercial supremacy with South America, and keep open the way for trade and traffic of China and India.

It consolidates and secures the integrity of our own country. The Pacific States, with their rapidly growing commerce in the East, with their immense coast line, need to be tied more indissolubly with the South and East. The Pacific rail is spanning the continent have done much to bind the Pacific States to the Union. It needs only the shorter waterway, via the Nicaraguan canal to perfect that union and strengthen our trade relations with those States and identify all our commercial interests.

The opportunity is now before the South for this extension of her commercial relations, for widening of her manufacturing industries, and enlarging all her interests. Shall it be said of us "who seeks and will not take when once 't's offered shall never find it more." A magnificent future seems stretching before us, "which all the laws of trade and the decrees of nature" have given us of the South. Can we arise superior to partisanship, to the timidity of the times, the vague and nameless fears of the future, grasp the opportunity and master the seeming difficulties which in a large measure are the result of our heretofore isolated situation? Let us have more faith in ourselves and our country!

REMARKABLE RESCUE.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught a cold, while setting dinner long; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from the first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself found and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at McCrum Drug Co., large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

RECOVERING FROM APPENDICITIS.

Miss Gretchen Parsons, of Natural Bridge, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Old Dominion Hospital last week, is steadily improving. Her recovery is now assured.—Richmond Dispatch.

LOBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement, I continued these use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts per bottle at McCrum Drug Co.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?
We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.
No need of this snowstorm. As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation. It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.
Ayer's Hair Vigor
And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.
We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.
If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system, which may be easily remedied.

FAIRFIELD, Dec. 12.

On Tuesday Dec. 6th Joseph Robinson, son of Mr. Wm. Robinson, was cutting timber in the woods with his father when a large limb from a falling tree struck him on the back of the head and shoulders causing internal injuries from which he died; his head being mashed terribly and his back broken. He lived four hours but never regained consciousness at all after he was struck. The funeral was preached at the Presbyterian church of this place by the Rev. Mr. Kendig of Stuart's Draft and the interment was made in Fairfield graveyard. The deceased leaves a father, mother, and eight brothers and sisters to mourn his loss. The whole community deeply sympathize with the stricken family who are almost crazed with grief at this terrible calamity.

Mr. Joseph Fritz, who has been ill with fever for some weeks, is improving slowly now, we are glad to note.

Mrs. E. J. Cochran has gone on an extended visit to her son and daughters of Washington, an New York.

The firm of Wade and Wallace will, by mutual consent, dissolve partnership at the end of the year, when Mr. Wallace will withdraw from the firm. The business will be continued under Mr. Wade's management we hear.

Mr. Smith, recently of Glasgow, has lately brought his family and settled in our village.

ROCKBRIDGE BATHS, Dec. 12

—But little news of interest in this community, at this writing. Everything seems busy, in some shape, getting ready for what appears to be closing in upon us,—winter in all its dreary reality.

The usual services were held in the churches here on yesterday. Dr.

McElwee preached to his congregation, a sermon on the "Subject of the tithe, which made it appear a plain duty on the part of all, to set aside, at least, one tenth of all income for objects of benevolence. He made one emphatic assertion, that ought to impress seriously and be followed with improvement along that line. "If the one-hundredth part of the money spent for whiskey and tobacco were spent for the interests of the church, the Lord's treasury would overflow."

Most of our farmers have finished cribbing corn, but find it difficult to haul fodder in consequence of the dry, frosty weather.

Mr. Emerson Horn, who moved from his former home near this place to his farm near Brownsburg eight years ago, will, this week, move back to the old homestead.

Mr. Allie Conner who has lived on South River, near Marl Brook, for the past year, will soon take charge of the Shaw farm here. We welcome these as good and useful citizens, and hope they will come to stay.

Mr. Jesse Clements had the misfortune a few days ago to make a mislick and severely cut his foot. In consequence he must house up for a while. Lesson. Hit where you look hereafter, Uncle Jess.

A good deal of talk about the Message and one of our farmers was heard to say that if the President were down here digging in the ground for 60 cent wheat and 25 cent corn that he would, most likely, change his mind in regard to the prosperous agricultural pursuits of which he speaks so favorably.

Since beginning this article snow commenced falling, and now, at 10:30 a. m., is coming down rapidly. Happy are those who are well prepared for it, but a pity for the many who have but little wood and short rations.
